~~The first and most important step in mining placer gold is to find the deposit. If you find a placer gold deposit with considerable amounts of gold worth mining, then you need to find out if the area is free so that you can stake a claim or if someone already owns the claim so that you can lease the claim. This is important so that you don't run into legal problems relating to mineral trespass.~~

Alluvial or eluvial deposits are the most common type of placer gold, and are often the richest. They contain pieces of gold that have been washed away from the lode by the force of water, and have been deposited in sediment in or near watercourses or former watercourses. Therefore, they are mostly found in valleys or flood plains.

~~Placer mining—Wikipedia~~

The Geology of Placer Deposits A placer deposit is a concentration of a natural material that has accumulated in unconsolidated sediments of a stream bed, beach, or residual deposit. Gold derived by weathering or other process from lode deposits is likely to accumulate in placer deposits because of its weight and resistance to corrosion.
