In the relational literature, the subject of termination - the ending of an analysis - has received scant attention, and traditional Freudian or ego-psychological criteria are not always enough to assess the readiness to terminate therapy in the coconstructed,

Intersubjective analytic relationship. Good

Enough Endings seeks to remedy this gap,

bringing together

contributions from

contemporary relational thinkers, while at the same time engaging

with ideas from other

psychoanalytic

perspectives. Topics

given consideration

include: Can there be a

File Type PDF Good Enough Is The New Perfect

relational criteria or paradigm for termination, and what would it include? How do treatment goals of the analyst and/or that of the patient affect the decision to terminate?

How do recent developments in attachment theory and research influence the preparation to end analysis? What occurs for the patient after termination, and how do we assess the need for follow-up?

Integrating elements of existing psychoanalytic theory with the fruits of the relational turn,

Good Enough Endings
expands and expounds
upon the relational considerations in ending analysis, providing a

- and perhaps most
