The potential products in double-replacement reactions are simple to predict; the anions and cations simply exchange. Remember, however, that one of the products must precipitate, otherwise no chemical reaction has occurred.

There are two common mistakes when predicting the products of a chemical reaction. The first is predicting the formation of a theoretically impossible product such as  $\text{NaCO}_3$  or  $\text{Ag}_4\text{Cl}$ . The second is failing to balance the equation once the products have been accurately predicted
