If the spider then goes back to white flowers, they will remove the pigment from their cells and excrete it from their bodies. Most of the time, it takes about 25 days for the spider to turn from white to completely yellow, and about 6 days to turn from yellow back to white. The change in color is regulated by visual feedback.

White Lady Spider. The [dancing] white lady is only one of many uniquely adapted spider species found here in the Namib. Consider this a first installment. Named after a famous rock painting in Namibia, Leucochestris arenicola is large (over five inches across) and inhabits long silk lined burrows. It is found only in the sand sea and the dry Kuiseb Riverbed, and its burrows tend to be located near the base of dune slopes.
